COMMUNICATION OBJECTIVES

This annual report has been prepared to answer a wide range of interests.

It records the University of Queensland's performance in 1998 and is structured according to the strategic aims, aspirations and commitments outlined in our five-year Strategic Plan 1998-2002.

The report aims to encourage understanding of our role within the community, highlight the diversity and significance of our activities, and demonstrate our effective stewardship of public resources while fulfilling our formal reporting requirements as a State university.

Potential readers include members of State Parliament, members of the public, the University community (academics, administrative staff and students), the business and media communities and others such as Australian and overseas visitors, benefactors, and prospective staff and students.

They will find the report describes a range of initiatives, achievements and plans for our immediate future – all of which provide a sound basis for measuring our performance in 1998 and our continuing prospects as a premier Australian university.
