Editorial

This is the first Special Issue to be published by Crossroads. Special Issues will be those generated by a single conference, event, or author, and will be guest edited. We are privileged to present 16 articles written by the internationally renowned and respected Brazilian philosopher, Luiz Costa Lima. We are indebted to Matthew Lamb, a member of the Editorial Board and the guest editor for this issue, for his vision, powers of persuasion and hard work, in putting this issue together. He has organized publishing permission for those articles previously published in English, and for the translation from Portuguese for those articles previously only published in this language, and for the translation of those that appear in a published format for the very first time. We are proud to be able to present these works to the English speaking public, articles that would otherwise be unavailable to many. We anticipate publishing a follow-on special issue dedicated to responses generated by this edition of the journal in July 2009. We hope you enjoy this very Special Issue.
