

Chinese Investment in Australia

James Laurenceson*, Chinese Investment in Australia. East Asia Economic Research Group
Discussion Paper No. 12, July 2007, School of Economics, The University of Queensland. Queensland.

Full text available as:

PDF - Requires Adobe Acrobat Reader or other PDF viewer.

Abstract

Chinese investment in Australia is emerging as an important part of the Australia-China economic relationship. This paper overviews the major characteristics of Chinese investment in Australia up to the present - its volume, form, sectoral distribution and the major players. It then discusses the policies that have been driving recent increases and those that are likely to have a more profound impact over the longer term.

JEL classifications – F14, F21

Keywords: Australia, China, investment

* Corresponding author –

James Laurenceson

The School of Economics

The University of Queensland

Brisbane Queensland 4072

Australia

Ph – (+617) 3365 6085

Email – j.laurenceson@uq.edu.au