

Diagnosis & Management of Throat Cancer: The Patient's Journey

A multidisciplinary symposium for continuing professional development jointly presented by

The Faculty of Health Sciences, University of Queensland
& Dept of Otolaryngology Head and Neck Surgery,
Princess Alexandra Hospital

The Russell Strong Auditorium Basement
Princess Alexandra Hospital, Brisbane
Saturday 7 May 2011, 8.30am—1pm

Discover the options for treatment and management of this disease, based on a real-life patient case.

This symposium will feature presentations from members of the multidisciplinary team that is central to ensuring that these patients receive the best available care and support through all phases of their illness. The Dept of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery at the Princess Alexandra Hospital is recognised world-wide for its work with these types of cancers, having performed more pharyngolaryngectomies and achieved the best success rates over the last 30 years, of any unit in the world.

Following a keynote address by Prof. Bill Coman, ENT surgeon and head of department, the symposium will focus on issues of relevance to a wide range of medical and health disciplines.

Who should attend:

All doctors, nurses and allied health professionals involved with, or interested in, the diagnosis, management and coordination of patients with hypopharyngeal carcinoma or related cancers.

Continuing Professional Development:

Accreditation for CPD points is being sought from all relevant professional organisations.
